Every citizen should see that he votes for changing the day of the state election trom October to November. Every four years we have two great fights in Ohio when we should have but one, and as a resu't Ohio has the burden of the national canvass to bear and business is paralyzed for months. Ohio should follow the good example of other states and provide for but one election a year.

An Offensive Alliance.

Four years ago our eloquent and effervescent fellow-townsman, Dr. Leonard. came here from Cincinnati (we believe). and made a rattling speech against the republicans, and in behalf of Mr. Ludlow, then the prohibition standard-bearer, in the Grand Opera House, owned by our distinguished democratic citizen, John W. Bookwalter. The burden of the doctor's harrangue was the punishment he proposed to bestow on the republicans because they-hundreds of thousands of whom had never heard of him-failed to see eye to eye with him and to do as he wished them to do. It was of no avail to them that they put in the plea of ignorance of the distinguished orator, for that only aggrevated their crime. Fortunately, Mr. Bookwalter and Mr. Ludlow, who as candidates were both trying to beat Governor Foster, were finally defeated and the republicans were not so powerfully punished as they might have been. But the fact of the very close relation between the followers of Bookwalter and Ludlow, (Leonard being among the adherents of the last named), and of their virtual and effective co-operation, was the great, unmasked, universally apparent political fact of the campaign. Last year, St. John, of Kansas, who had so overdone his prohibition work in Kan- in this place. Biggs was arrested and taken sas as to make the cause odious and to se- to jail,

Marriage of the Dominie Whose Name

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 4.-Rev. W. M.

Taylor, who occupied the pulpit in a Presbyterian church near Mt. Jackson, this county has taken unto himself a wife, and, as this gentleman was brought so prominently before the public a few months ago by the announcement that he was to marry the widow of the late President Garfield, a little romance connected with his life will not be here amiss

It seems that about eight years ago, while Mr. Taylor was attending a convention in Scranton, he became greatly enamored with the manner in which a lady missionary reported to the convention her doings among the heathen of Africa. After the convention adjourned he was introduced to the lady whose name was Mary Loring. The train was due in a few minutes, and, after merely acknowledging the introduction, he hurried to meet a friend going in his direction. This was the first and only time he ever asw the lady until last Monday, when he went to Scranton to claim her as his bride. This was

His arrangements for the marriage, which were not made public until the Sunday before leaving for Scranton, were privately learned. As the eavesdroppers knew of Mr.

Taylor's intimate acquaintance with the Widow Garfield, they connected the facts and started the false rumor which caused the wife of the late president so much annoy-ance. Mr. Taylor remarked from the pupit, a day or so ago, that he "boped that the fel-low who circulated the false impression would now circulate au authoritative contradiction.

The First Section Breaks In Two, and the Liberated Cars Dash Down into the Following Section-Five Persons Killed and Thirty or Farry Wounded.

The engineer of the rear section saw the cars approaching, but only had time to stop his train before it -in the Ohio canvass this year? Hoadly, the virtual and actual friend of free struck him.
